

RECIPROCITY WILL CERTAINLY PASSMEASURE SURE TO GO THROUGH THE SENATE REGARDLESS OF ROOT'S AMENDMENT.

SUGAR TRUST SECRETS

Committee Hearing Truth About Organization of the Big Sweet Tooth of the Nation.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, June 12.—"Reciprocity will go through the senate all right,"
said Senator Lodge today.
"Whether the Root amendment goes through or not is immaterial. Even if it does not, the agreement will be just as effective."

Senator Lodge said he had abandoned his idea of offering an amendment for the protection of the fishermen in his state.

Oppose Plan.

Washington, D. C., June 12.—Senator McCumber (Republican of North Dakota), before the senate today outlined his views on the direct election of senators, and declared he would vote against the entire proposition rather than have the amendment prevail to deprive the national government of control of such election.

Use of Money.

McCumber stated his belief that only rich men could bear the expense of two campaigns—one for the nomination and a second for the election.
While it would eliminate corruption in state legislatures, McCumber said it would present a broader field for corruption.

The Sugar Trust.

That the stock of the American Company—the sugar trust—is now in the hands of 19,000 holders, more than half of them women, who hold more for their interests than the stock is now worth, was developed by the Hawley Sugar Investigation committee of the House at its opening session today.

Tells Facts.

Edwin F. Atkins, first vice president and acting president of the company, was on the stand. That the original Havemeyer Sugar combination was formed to eliminate competition, obtain the highest possible price for the product and reduce the cost of production, was also admitted by Atkins.

Cotton Crop.

According to a report of the commissioners this afternoon the value of the 1910 crop of cotton is estimated at $363,100,000, the most valuable over produced in the United States.

WILL TAKE ACTION
ON THE FRANCHISEApplication of Interurban Company To Extend Line To Be Presented To Common Council Tonight.

Chief among the items of business for the meeting of the common council at the city hall at eight o'clock this evening is the application of the Bellevue Lake and Janesville Railway Company for a franchise for additional rights and privileges, that it may extend its present line on Main street to the corner of North Main street and Prospect avenue, where the proposed new freight depot of the company is to be located. Other matters to receive the attention of the city fathers will likely be of a routine nature, although something startling may be sprung by either of the two factions into which the council seems to be divided.

No action will be taken, as was ordinarily stated, with regard to the renewal of saloon licenses tonight.
This may be done at the next regular meeting on May 26, or a special meeting, may be called to take action on them, but the state law requires that the applications for license must be published at least fifteen days before the permits to sell liquor are granted.
It would therefore be impossible for the council to act this evening.

Boards of sewer and water commissioners of Municipal Judges C. L. Hild and the contract and bond of Mero and Loveland to build cement sidewalks will be presented tonight and will, undoubtedly, be accepted. The Hobbs Milling Company has sent in a communication regarding to the discharge from the sewer at the corner of North River and West Main streets, and which, it is claimed, is detrimental to the flow of water in the company's raceway, which furnishes power for the plant. Reports of the municipal court, police department and board of education for the month of May will be presented. The city clerk and city treasurer will ask that they be allowed to close their offices on Saturday afternoon during the month of June, July and August. The payment of expenses for the Memorial Day celebration will likely be ordered.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., June 12.—"The legislative session has cost the state in salaries thus far nearly $51,000, according to figures made public today.

Nearly 1,500 bills have been introduced at this session, making the salary cost of the session about $31 per bill. If the session concludes in two weeks, the cost per bill, unless a large number of new bills come in—which is extremely unlikely—the cost per bill will be slightly more, about $32, and the total about $52,000. If that adjustment does not come for three weeks, which is more likely, the cost per bill will be about $1 more and the total about $53,000. This cost per bill has been much lower in the last three sessions, when the employees were under civil service.

KNOWS OF NO SPLIT

Has No Knowledge of Any Dis-ension Among Progress-
sives of Senate.

[BY UNITED PRESS.]

Washington, D. C., June 12.—If there is a "split" in the ranks of the progressives in the senate, Senator Bourne (Rep. Oregon) does not know of such a thing. He said:

"The apparent effort on the part of some newspapers to mislead the people of the country by conveying the idea that there is no protest against Taft's re-nomination, is the most unfortunate, idiotic piece of political trickery I have ever seen indulged in.
I would suggest to the newspaper editors and representatives to propound these two questions to the first one hundred republicans they meet:

"First—Who will be the nominee on the next republican national convention?"

"Second—Who will be president?"

INSPECTED SITE OF COMING ENCAMPMENT

CAPTAIN WESTFAHL OF BATTERY
A MILWAUKEE VISITED JANES-
VILLE SUNDAY TO PLAN
FOR HIS BATTERY'S
ARRIVAL.

TO KEEP OPEN CAMP

Equipment of This Battery Is Valued
At $150,000.—Has Latest Model
Guns and Carries Complete
Camp and Field Equipment With It.

That the coming military demonstration in Janesville, July 3rd, 4th and 5th, is attracting more than passing interest through the state and the middle west, is evidenced by the prominence the celebration is being given by outside newspapers. The fact that the United States Government has detailed Battery F, the crack battery of the Fifth Field artillery stationed at Ft. Sheridan, and the famous Headquarters Band to Janesville, for the three days, shows the importance the encampment has taken in military affairs.

Captain Westfahl, commander of the famous Battery A of Milwaukee, which is also to take part in the encampment, was in Janesville yesterday to look over the ground and plan for the arrival and encampment of his battery. This battery is considered the finest battery in the Department of the Lakes. It is equipped with the latest model guns of the United States Government and is the only battery in the state militia under government control, that owns its own horses.

Captain Westfahl was accompanied by Sergeant Dunn, who has charge of the armory of the battery at Whitefish Bay, Milwaukee, and met with the executive committee to discuss ways and means. The captain was most enthusiastic over the coming encampment and when he visited the different camping sites and picked out the grounds on Madison street at the foot of Argus street, as the most suitable for his purpose. The Milwaukee infantry companies will be camped across the road from the battery.

The battery will leave Milwaukee on the afternoon of July 3rd at three o'clock, on a special train, consisting of three horse cars, two flat cars, a baggage car and two coaches, over the Northwestern road, arriving in Janesville at five thirty. They will bring four guns of the latest field pattern, capable of firing fifteen rounds of ammunition, each round containing 252 bullets, that when discharged spread out like a mushroom. Four caissons, a hundred and two men including officers, sixty-two horses and their complete camp equipment, as though in active field service.

"It will take me twenty-five minutes to unload and be in my march to camp," said Captain Westfahl. "I can take my camp and have supper ready for my men in less than an hour after our arrival and it will all be in just as ship shape as though in actual field service. Our battery is one of the finest in the department of the lakes and we own our own horses and have the latest model guns. The total value of the entire outfit is $150,000 and my men are considered among the best drilled in any branch of the artillery service in the country.

"We shall keep open house while in Janesville, and men will be detailed to explain the workings of all the guns and the manner in handling them when in actual use. Shells will be on exhibition and visitors will be on exhibition. We bring our own cook and field tents for the men, two men to each tent. The cook tent is 8 by 14 feet and the men will live in three by four regular camp tents.

"We have four three inch field guns with four caissons and they are capable of shooting fifteen rounds a minute. Each shell contains 252 bullets, which when fired spread out like a mushroom and are most effective. I am glad to be in Janesville for the celebration and expect to have over a hundred and fifty rounds of ammunition to use in the sham battle, which ought to be one of the biggest events ever held in the state of Wisconsin."

Aside from Capt. Westfahl's battery the crack battery of the Fifth Field artillery, which is also to take part in the encampment at the Fair grounds. This battery is commanded by Capt. Scott and will arrive on Sunday afternoon, after a march overland from Ft. Sheridan, accompanied by the Headquarters Band. These two camps of field artillery are a show of their own and added to these equipments are eight companies of infantry from the crack First Regiment of the Wisconsin National Guard.

It will take a second special train leaving Milwaukee at five on the night of the Third of July to bring out the infantry troops and they will arrive shortly after seven and be encamped near the Milwaukee Battery. Co. I, of the First, will probably come up on Monday noon and will be on exhibition the afternoon train and the Milwaukee Company about four on Monday morning Janesville a veritable armed camp by the night before the Fourth.

"They are talking nothing else but the Janesville celebration in Milwaukee," said Captain Westfahl. "At a smoker of the National Guard officers last week much interest was shown in the affair and the sham battle was talked over most thoroughly. I find that the Fair grounds here, where you plan to have the battle are well adapted for the work and we can give a most interesting battle I am certain. I will see General Boardman this week about any extra ammunition and we shall have a big enough supply to make all kinds of noise."

Edgerton, June 12.—On Sunday the T. A. and D. society, the strongest temperance organization in Rock county or southern Wisconsin, held a special meeting to come to a definite understanding in the matter of again considering the advisability of an annual picnic and races. After a lengthy discussion a vote was taken in favor of the same and a committee was appointed to report at a special meeting to be held Sunday next, at which the final date for holding of same, also, will be decided upon. The society has been somewhat in a quandary over the undertaking, but the business men of the city have extended aid, as well as financial assistance, to warrant the undertaking. The Irish picnic, therefore, will take place in August, the same as in other years.

Must Go Together.
Integrity without knowledge is weak and useless.—Paley.

Literary Persons Inferior Penmen.
The handwriting of literary men is supposed to have improved during recent years, but there are still a few with a fondness for hieroglyphics. At a meeting of the Methodist conference in Melbourne, Australia, the other day Rev. Dr. Fitchett, author of "Deeds That Won the Empire," and other popular works, handed up a resolution. The president looked at it, turned it upside down and round about, and at length gave it up in despair. The clerk was equally unable to decipher it. "I must ask Brother Fitchett," said the president, "to be good enough to rewrite his resolution and try to make it readable. At present it resembles a doctor's prescription."

Deep-Seated Nation About Reading.
The desire to make persons read is one of the most curious obsessions of the American librarian. Where it does not take the posthumous form of trying to browbeat people to read "useful" and "instructive" books when they want amusing books, it becomes an attempt to turn reading for pleasure into reading for duty. It will apparently take generations to remove from the heads of many persons the deep-seated notion that the reading of a book (no matter how noble as a work of literature) simply and purely and absolutely for pleasure with no ulterior motive of pecuniary gain, increase of knowledge, education or culture, that such reading is not a little sinful.

TO BROADEN PUBLICITY BILL.

Senate Committee Will Offer Amendments to House Measure.

Washington, June 12.—With a view of insuring the widest publicity of all the expenditures of candidates for congress, the senate committee on privileges and elections next week will complete amendments to the house bill on this subject, which will vastly broaden the proposed law.

Much difficulty is being experienced in finding terms which will express the committee's purpose. It is proposed to make the law applicable to primary as well as regular elections. The various kinds of primaries now being used make it difficult to deal with all in the same terms. An individual accounting by both candidates for the senate and house will be required.

An effort will be made to amend the law applying to corrupt practices so as to further insure the purity of the ballot.

LIAR SHOULD BE REGULATED

Prevalence of Unofficial Ananias Clubs
Tends to Degrade the High Art of Prevarication.

The growing custom of establishing Ananias clubs should be discouraged for the reason that it is becoming ridiculous.

If the country had one properly organized Ananias club it would be a good institution and would have a large and distinguished membership. But such a club should not be a hazardous affair, and initiation to it should be a solemn and interesting function.

There is no distinction, no satisfaction, in belonging to a fraternal society that is open to every corner and in which a nomination is equivalent to an election. The way these small, private Ananias clubs are run is a disgrace to all concerned.

One man calls another a liar, and the latter immediately becomes a charter member of an Ananias club and is permitted to wear regalia and participate in the mystic rites.

One result of the prevalence of these unofficial clubs is the degradation of the grand old name of liar. It is being shorn of its dignity. Time was when to be a successful liar amounted to something. Distinction in that line meant that a man possessed many admirable qualities, including originality and initiative.

No man of sluggish mental equipment ever became a first-class liar. To tell a fish story and make it sound like the truth required pronounced talent.

The word has been so misused and overworked that many citizens become incensed when referred to publicly as liars and some resort to violence in their resentment. The word is losing its proud significance, and soon will be in the same class with "jades" and "gentlemen."

The country needs a law prohibiting citizens from establishing Ananias clubs without due authority from the department of justice or some other bureau. All clubs should be chartered and registered, and no man should be permitted to nominate another for membership without the consent of the nominee.—Emporia Gazette.

WAS NERVOUS WRECK EIGHT OR TEN YEARS

Statement in Connection With "Tona Vita" Made by Woman Who Found Health in This Wonderful Remedy.

Mrs. M. Forster of 908 Eighth avenue, Milwaukee, makes the following statement in connection with "Tona Vita," the new tonic now being introduced in that city.

"I have been a nervous wreck the last eight or ten years. My condition finally grew serious and alarming. I could not perform my household duties, was unfit for anything and thought my days numbered.

"My digestion was very poor. The food I ate generally caused nausea. I suffered with stomach trouble and constipation. I frequently had headache, pains in the back and spells of dizziness. My heart became affected and the least exertion or excitement would leave me nervous and exhausted. Life became one unbroken period of misery and I often declared I would be better off dead.

"I had given up all hope of ever recovering my health, when a neighbor advised me to try 'Tona Vita.' I bought a bottle and began taking it. The effect was instantaneous. I began improving from the start. I now feel thoroughly benefited. In fact, I am as healthy and happy as when a girl in my teens. I think 'Tona Vita' saved my life and I heartily recommend it as a medicine of wonderful value."

One of the physicians who are introducing "Tona Vita" in Milwaukee in connection with Mrs. Forster's case said: "We are receiving large orders of statements like this from Milwaukee people, who have used the preparation. The chief value of 'Tona Vita' lies in the fact that it quickly responds to the needs of a badly debilitated body.

"That tired, dragging feeling, a sluggish mind and dull memory, depression of spirits, intense nervousness, palpitation of the heart, weak back, cold feet, bowel trouble and headaches are among the many symptoms of this debilitated condition from which thousands are now suffering.

"Most of the so-called kidney trouble, nearly all indigestion, and fully half of the headaches can be attributed solely to a nervous, debilitated condition of the body. 'Tona Vita' will positively remove this condition in an astonishingly short time."

There is an attendant remedy, known as Lee's Rheumatic Laxative, which is most valuable to those suffering with chronic constipation. It is pleasant to the taste, does not grip, and acts promptly.

The Smith Drug Co. has secured the agency for Janesville for these celebrated preparations and are now on sale at that store.

DODGED SHOWER AND BEAT MADISON NINE IN GAME YESTERDAY

Rain fell in ninth inning but Janesville players had already won game with Capitol City team, six to three.

Rain stopped the playing in the game yesterday at the Fair Grounds between the Janesville team and the Madison City team in the first half of the ninth inning, but Janesville had the advantage, 6 to 3 then, and there was no need to play out the full time.

The spectators, however, were not inconvenienced by the showers, as ample protection from the wet was afforded by the grand stand, which has been re-roofed and changed since the new management took hold of the park.

The match was one of the best in which the local team has taken part this season, but the crowd was not as large as was desired, considering the contest which was offered. Janesville secured on rallies in the second, fourth and seventh innings, but throughout the other innings Barry, pitching for Madison, held them down well. Butters put up a star game for Janesville in pitching, allowing but four hits, but used poor judgment in the sixth inning and gave Madison their three runs.

The rally for Janesville in the second inning was started when Smith was sent to first on an error. Miller, next up, poked out a single advancing Smith to third and Miller stole second. Hall singled scoring Smith and Miller, but died on base. Kinney going out Gannon to Ridgeway. Butters struck out.

Miller and Hall again were the heroes of the day in the fourth inning bringing in the two runs made during that stanza. Williams, first batter up, struck out. Smith was caught out Gannon to Ridgeway. Miller then came to the rescue and aided by Hall crossed the plate for a run. Kinney's single helped Hall on his way, but Kinney was caught by Soron trying to steal second.

Yesterday's contest was a great battle between the pitchers, both making good records for strikeouts. Butters won first money with sixteen struck out, and Barry fanned eleven.

Errors at critical points of the contest gave the opening game of the doubleheader at Athletic Park on Sunday in the Commercial league series to the Y. M. C. A. after by the second inning to six. The association batters made but five hits off Denzer, who twirled for the Plumbers, but his teammates failed to come in with the proper support at the right times and "Y" garnered four runs by the mistakes. Richards, pitching for the Y. M. C. A., allowed nine hits. The Plumbers played in better form Saturday than in the game the week before and with more practice will become one of the strong teams of the league.

Rain put an end to the proceedings in the match between the Parker Pen company and the Calorie company teams in the fourth inning. The Parkers then had a lead of 9 to 1 over their opponents, errors by the Calorie giving the Parkers the advantage. Carroll of the Calorie allowed but four hits. The game, however, does not count as the rules of the league require that five innings be played.

CUBS VICTORS IN ERRORLESS GAME

Local Amateur Baseball Team Defeated Collie Hills of Deloit in Line City Yesterday.

At Deloit yesterday the Janesville Cubs avenged themselves for their defeat in a previous game by beating the Collie Hills baseball team of the Line City 7 to 1, and playing an errorless game. Five weeks ago the Deloit team took the honors five to four and their victory was chiefly due to errors made by the Cubs. Yesterday they played an airtight game and but for a little wildness by Rogers in the first inning which let in Deloit's lonely tally, would have shut out Deloit completely. Rogers, however, tightened up after the initial round and retired the Deloit batters in one, two and three order. The box score:

Coming Boxing Entertainment On Thursday Attracts Considerable Attention In Sporting World.

Janesville is on the boxing map of the country this week Thursday, when Henry Forbes of Chicago, spars with Joe Homelund of St. Louis, in the whiz of the athletic entertainment at the West Side Rink. The match is perhaps the best that has ever been made in this city and the advance sale of seats at Hockett's shows that aside from the boxing lovers of the city there promises to be a large attendance from Illinois and Wisconsin cities. The affair is under the auspices of the Janesville Athletic Club and was given with an idea of interesting the visiting tourists of the Chicago Automobile Association and the Chicago Athletic Club inter club rink that will be here that night. Walter Eckersall of Chicago, will referee the bout; he also added the local committee in signing up Forbes and Homelund. Young Cox a local boy of much talent is on for a round bout with Kid Travers of Chicago, both men to weigh in at 121 pounds. Kid Mann of Holmdel, N. J., will be the champion of the evening, and Tony Castel of Gary, Ind., will be the challenger. Kid Mann is one of the rising stars in the squared circle, and is a lad of much promise. He has boxed here before and is very popular. The final bout of the evening is the Forbes-Homelund and is expected to draw a large crowd. The advance sale of seats at Hockett's and already the best ring side seats are fairly well cleaned out although there are plenty of good ones left. It is expected that the Chicago visitors will take a hundred and fifty of the seating, making it a record breaking crowd for the biggest boxing carnival ever held in Janesville.

International Horse Show Opens.
London, June 12.—The fifth annual International Horse Show opened at Olympia this afternoon. It will continue through three days. Given as it is under the patronage of King George, the exhibition this year has been anticipated with peculiar interest by society and horsemen as one of the most brilliant events of the coronation season. Thousands attended the opening today to see the wonderfully decorated hall, which has been made to represent a Tudor village. The entries from abroad are more numerous than ever before. For the first time Russia, Germany, Austria, and Sweden have sent representatives for the officers competition. The other competitors include France, Belgium, the United States and Canada. The military competitions for the King Edward VII. gold cup are expected to be very keen. Judge Moore again heads the list of American exhibitors in number and variety of entries, his exhibits appearing in almost every class. Other American exhibitors are Alfred G. Vanderbilt, Thomas W. Lawson, Paul Borg, J. T. Stotesbury, J. W. Hartman, C. W. Watson and E. H. Wentworth.

ROOT AND RECIPROCITY.

One of the strongest advocates of the Canadian reciprocity measure in the east is the Christian Science Monitor of Boston. This newspaper comments on the present attitude of Root and reciprocity in the following manner. As this measure comes up in the senate this week, for final vote, it is interesting to note the attitude that the eastern press is taking on the subject.

"The committee on finance of the senate has voted to add the Root amendment to the Canadian reciprocity bill. In Chicago, the other day, President Taft made the frank admission that this amendment brings the bill into accord with the agreement as originally submitted to congress; but in his speech before the Cottonseed Crushers' Association, in New York, on Thursday night, he declared that reciprocity was a case to which these words should be applied: 'The bill, the whole bill and nothing but the bill.' A despatch from Ottawa says that the incorporation of the Root amendment in the agreement will not injure the pact in Canadian estimation.

"It is apparently difficult to reconcile all this, as difficult as it is to reconcile the attitude of certain low tariff democrats and certain progressive republicans toward the measure. On the one hand, the President appears to be holding out against an amendment to the purpose of which he would not have objected in the drafting of the original measure. On the other hand, Senator Root, a recognized supporter of the administration, is insisting on action which the President declares will impair and may destroy the prospects of carrying through the measure, mainly because Canada will not consent to its alteration. Then we have the assurance from Ottawa that Canada really does not care whether the Root amendment is adopted or not. On top of all this, Senator Bailey, whose party wants greater trade freedom, and Senator La Follette, whose following is avowedly against high protective duties, are found voting in the finance committee with those who would be glad to see reciprocity go to pieces.

"President Taft, however, has another reason than that of Canada's possible rejection of a doctored instrument for fearing that amendment will defeat the agreement. Representative Underwood, the democratic leader, has informed him, it is understood, that if the senate fails to refuse to concur, the House will refuse to concur. And to those who look below the surface of things the theory that Senator

Root has another reason for pressing his amendment than that which is generally ascribed as becoming more and more plausible. Mr. Root is an able lawyer and a strong constitutionalist. He does not take kindly to the idea of the executive handling over to the legislative branch a piece of work already cut out and stamped 'Must.' He has so expressed himself in general terms. Others, like him, who have no objection whatever to reciprocity, object strongly to the manner in which it has been brought forward, and their objection is strengthened every time the President insists upon compliance with his demand for the passage of the bill as it came from the White House.

"If present plans are carried out, the measure will be reported to the senate with the Root amendment next Tuesday. From that time on, the debate should uncover the grounds of opposition as well as support. Senator Root and his friends will have an opportunity of putting themselves plainly on record. This may be all that they will contend for. If the amendment shall be withdrawn, or if it shall be accepted by the President, and if the senators already pledged shall stand by the measure in either case, there can be no question as to its passage. Acceptance of the measure by the President, undoubtedly, would also clear the way for congressional action in the House. If Canada is not so particular about the proposed change in the paper and wood pulp section, the administration will be relieved of an obligation to resist it further.

RODDERS OF THE SOIL.

"An Iowa farm of something more than eighty acres passed into the hands of a city man on a mortgage. He rented it and for the first two or three years the returns were satisfactory. Then he found the dwellings and outbuildings needed repairs, which took back some of the profits. He held the land nine years and in that time had six tenants, the last of which harvested a crop of corn that barely was enough to feed his team and pay his own family expenses for the year. 'The land was in a community where values ranged around $125 an acre but it cost the owner only about $6,000 under the mortgage. As near as he could estimate his income from the land for the nine years was about $1,000, from which was deducted repairs, taxes, new fencing and other incidents aggregating about $1,200. This left him a net income of about $2,800. Then he tried to sell the land. Many buyers looked but none bought. They wanted no 'corned out' land, they said. Finally along came a young farmer who took it off his hands for $4,000. That left the first man a net income of $800 on his $6,000 investment for nine years.

"The greatest agricultural evil of the present day is the tenant farmer. This statement is made by President Henry J. Waters of the Kansas State Agricultural College. The tenant farmer, he declares, is the highwayman of the soil; collectively, a vandal horde that has marched from Maine to the Missouri, laying waste an agricultural empire with the fire of its greed and the sword of its ignorance. His advance guard already is thrown beyond the Mississippi. Give him time and he will overwhelm the West as he has the East.

"The tenant farmer, President Waters says, is the ruin of the country and the menace of the city. He has left in his wake impoverished land, abandoned farms and a train of economic evils that must soon be remedied or grave consequences will follow. The tenant farmer is the man who is chiefly responsible for the increased cost of living, he is the man who has caused American exports to fall off 200 million dollars in three years. He is the man who has reduced our farming area, forced the price of productive land to an abnormal height, and sent droves of sturdy young farmers beyond our borders to the north.

"President Waters has been investigating the tenant farmer for a long time and he knows his subject, but nothing good of him. He speaks now of the tenant who doesn't farm but merely skins the soil, not the real tenant farmer—the small ten per cent or so of hustling, ambitious young men, long on industry and short on cash, who rent only until they have saved enough to buy a farm of their own. He speaks of the other ninety per cent—the migratory agricultural vagabonds who follow in the wake of the homesteader and the homemaker, leaving blight and desolation wherever they turn."—From "Agricultural Highwaymen," July Technical World Magazine.

This severe arraignment of the tenant farmer introduces a topic for discussion which has heretofore received but little attention. The conditions described by President Waters are peculiar to the western states where land has been taken up or bought by speculators, and would still be unaltered but for the men who rent because unable to purchase.

"This class of men are usually short of money, and as they keep but little stock, the land soon becomes impoverished for lack of fertilizer, and having no proprietary interest in the soil they soon lose interest in trying to make it productive and so the work is slighted.

"These are some cold facts which entice conditions, and make the tenant a necessity, if the land is to be cultivated at all. A generation of American farmers has gone out, since the western states were opened up, and the boys of the new generation are not very largely represented as their fathers' successors in the field of agriculture.

"Every town and inland city has its full quota of retired farmers, and whole neighborhoods have changed complexion through change of ownership or because of the tenants who occupy the old homestead.

The average farm-bred American boy is ambitious, and the farm life fails to satisfy him. As a result the tenant becomes a necessity. The agricultural college is doing much to stimulate farm ambition, and when the fact is fully recognized and appreciated, that scientific farming calls for more brain than muscle, and rewards with absolute certainty, the farm will gain in attractiveness, and the boy, and not the tenant, will become his father's successor.

GARDEN IN HER HEART.

Walking one day, not long ago, through the slums of a city, my friend pointed to a box of plants on a window sill, over which a woman was working.

My friend said:

"Last year that window was a riot of green and this—one of the rare beauty spots in all this grimy."

"Then I thought of Humboldt's finding of the flower on the crater's edge."

The great naturalist tells of finding on the verge of the crater of Vesuvius a sweet flower. There was just a cupful of earth. Perhaps a passing bird had dropped the seed. And there on the fearful edge of things the sunshine and rain had coaxed a flower.

So the woman had grown on the lip of this crater of misery a little garden.

Flowers!

In profusion God has strewn them far up the bleak side of the mountain, in the cranny of the rocks, deep in the canyons, in verdant oases. God has flowers to spare, while our flowers must be carefully planned and planted in tended gardens. But, mark you—The flowers are planted first of all in her heart!

The cynosure of our eyes, they are tended to give expression to the desire of our hearts, which desire is a faint shadow of the divine desire.

So this woman must have held a flower garden in her heart.

Somewhere in the woman's soul were grace and beauty and fragrance, and until this fragrance and beauty and grace had flowered into moral fairness she was not content.

I talked with her.

Praying her effort to grow the vines and blossoms, I saw through the lines of care and sorrow a sweet smile break over her face. Her illumined features and the faint finger of the ghoul in her eyes were good to see.

Poverty and hardship had not crushed out of her the divine love for beauty.

Her little garden on a window sill was planted there like an oasis in a desert, and she had grown some blossoms that but for her had never bloomed. And she had loved the tender growing things because, first of all—

There was a garden in her heart.

THE WISE has no grief and he has OLD MAN no care, and he has just luck in his rocking chair, and views the world with a cheerful smile, for his ladder's full, and he has his pipe.

"The plan he followed you will endorse," he says, "I work like a black-faced horse, I swing the ax and he piled the spade, and he knuckled down at the blacksmith's trade; wherever he worked, in the field or town, a part of his troubles he salted down. He saw the folly of spendthrift men, and took to the bank a large brass ring; they burned their money as though with fire; he took to the bank a big tin fire. And now he sits in his figure's shade and eats ice cream with a wooden spade, and people smile as they look at him; he's fat and easy and full of vim. And where are the fellows who drew their wages and blew it in, in that by-gone age? Do they lean back in their rocking chairs, serene and happy and free from cares? Have they their fingers and toes to cut? Oh, ask the copper who walks your beat."

PUNISHING ANIMALS AS CRIMINALS.

There were some queer doings in the Middle Ages. For instance, criminal laws were sometimes enforced against offending animals. It is a matter of record that in 1266, at Fontenay, near Paris, a pig was publicly burned for having devoured a child. In 1336 a judge at Falaise condemned a sow to be mutilated in her legs and head, and then hanged, for having lacerated and killed a child. She was executed in the public square, dressed in a man's clothing. In 1388 a horse was tried at Dijon and condemned to death for having killed a man. In 1499 a bull was condemned to death at Canro for killing a boy. In Ireland, in 1383, a cock was convicted of having laid an egg which hatched out a reptile.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

YOU ALL probably read in the newspapers a few months ago of the sensational and tragic shooting of David Graham Phillips, the novelist, by a semi-mad crank.

Have you also, I wonder, read any of the stories and essays of this author, which have been published in various magazines since his death.

If you haven't, I think you should—"you" meaning all American women, especially wives and wives-to-be.

I'll tell you why.

David Graham Phillips had evidently been studying the question, "Why is marriage a failure?" very deeply, and he had come to a conclusion. This conclusion is set forth in all of his later works. Whether it is right or wrong, I don't know, but it certainly is interesting and suggestive. This is the sum of it:

American women of the middle class are not doing their part in the partnership of married life. The average woman considers that she is bestowing a sufficient living upon a man in marrying him and does not realize that she has just as definite obligations after marriage as he.

This, according to Mr. Phillips, is a totally wrong point of view. He considers that the woman should go about her business of running the home as smoothly and successfully as possible, of getting the greatest possible efficiency out of the money supplied, of being a first-class mother, and as attractive to him as possible, just as keenly as he goes about the business of earning a living.

and that a failure on her part is just as flagrant as a failure on his part to support her.

Here are a few quotations which illustrate the point of view:

"It is painful to an American girl of any class to find that she has to earn her position as wife. The current theory, a tradition from an early and woman-revering day, is that the girl has done her share and more when she has consented to the suit of the ardent male and has entrusted her precious charms to his exclusive keeping. According to that same theory it is the husband who must earn his position, must continue to earn it."

"The woman, emerging from a girlhood of idleness, she should never be able to achieve the married state and findings herself actually a Mrs. feels that she has completed her life work. She knows that she needs to do nothing more. She begins to relax, to wane, to go to seed mentally and physically, none the less, though she conceals her deterioration under the cheap and lazy 'culture' of the day, and physical deterioration under the paint, powder and dressmakers' devices for faking up a decently appearing body."

After speaking of the difficulty the undowered middle class girl has of finding a worthy husband, Mr. Phillips concludes:

"The remedy? The independence of the middle class girl—her economic independence. Not by means of the dowry or of the divorce with alimony; for the undowered or alimoniously divorced woman only fancy she is independent. But real independence, ability to do things practical, useful, to perform valuable services—that sort of education will make her fit to marry, and worth marrying."

Again in his novel "Gold," the husband and wife who suddenly discover after two years of married life that they do not love each other, are discussing the situation.

Says the man: "You may not realize it, but you are degraded by taking money you don't earn."

"Ah," and she laughed in mocking scorn, "you want me to earn my board and clothes—I your wife."

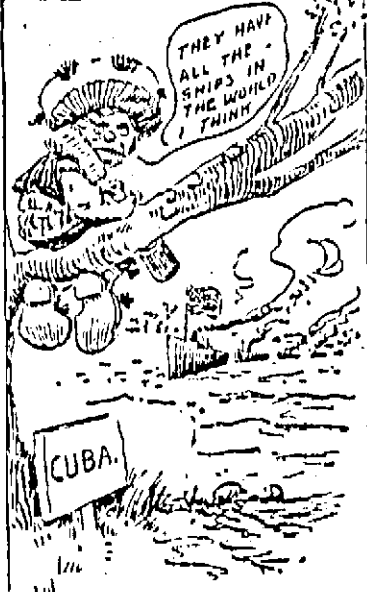

"He smiled amiably. 'I simply say,' he tossed the end of the finished cigar out the window and rose, 'that in the future I'll expect as good service as I could get at a hotel for the same money.'"

Now please do not think I am saying that this is the only possible point of view on the American marriage question, and that the American wife is always a shirk.

By no means.

You and I and everybody know plenty of women who bear their half, and more than their half of the burden.

But that the other kind of woman exists in the middle class and that the accusations Mr. Phillips hurls at her have at least some truth in them, I do believe, and I contend that his idea of equal obligations has at least a suggestive germ of thought in it for all wives and wives-to-be.

WHEN WE STARTED FOR CUBA.

June 12.—What happened on June 12, 1898? You don't know? Well, that shows what short memories we all have. It was on June 12, 1898, that the American army sailed away on 32 transports with the island of Cuba as their destination and the freedom of Cuba as their object. And when the boys sailed away the heart of the country was captured in those boys and the crews they carried. Then came the landing, the attack, the victory and the San Juan hill climb that was so far-reaching in its effect on a certain nation. Then came Santiago and the naval battle, a far cross country chase, and then a certain Spanish gentleman packing his trunk. Then came the applause of the world, a free people, and the Tobacco Trust and more American tourists. Then came fever and typhoid and pneumonia. Gen. Sherman knew about what he was talking when he said "War is hell," even though it is a comic opera war. Had we known the Spanish as we do now, we could have saved all the trouble by sending down a few policemen.

About Right.

A boy was asked to explain the difference between animal instinct and human intelligence. "If we had instinct," he said, "we should know everything we needed to know without learning it; but we've got reason, and so we have to study ourselves 'most blind, or be a fool.'—Universal Leader.

Their Similarity.

"A rolling stone gathers no moss," remarked the proverb dispenser. "And, like the human hair roller," rejoined the thoughtful thinker, "it also gravitates downhill."

DAILY DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN
Food Specialist

MONODIET IN TUBERCULOSIS.

Sir Hiram Maxim, a leading English authority on tuberculosis, says that pork and beans is the best diet in incipient consumption, and the theory is being tested at the Vermont state sanatorium at Rutland. It is now well established that consumption is a nutritional disease, and that the best treatment is that which relies upon restoring normal nutrition by natural means. If the theory and practice of the monodiet, as set forth in these hints during the past two years be correct, it must follow that in any case of lowered vitality and faulty nutrition, the adoption of a sole monodiet as prescribed by Hippocrates for consumption, goat's milk, or an approximate monodiet, like that suggested by the distinguished English inventor, must be superior to the "liberal" indiscriminately mixed diet, but it does not follow that pork and beans is the best monodiet. A well balanced ration with a full supply of fat is essential, and albumen easily assimilated. Pork is assimilated with difficulty, and while beans contain all the elements of nutrition, yet they impose an unnecessarily severe tax upon the vitality for digestion. However, it is encouraging to see that the old idea that a rich diet is advisable in sickness or in health is being abandoned. An important principle of the monodiet frequently emphasized in these hints is thus stated in the new circular of instruction on tuberculosis issued by the state of Illinois: "As far as possible each meal should consist of articles requiring about the same time to digest." It is no less important to recognize this principle in the diet of the well than of the sick, since the vitality of the worker is as important as that of the invalid.

Analysis of Good Temper.

The good temper is born in nature of low vitality, from nervous and thick skin. These are instinctive to change of moral atmosphere, and what would wound another soul mortally barely hurts a scratch on them. The rest of their emotions are usually on a par with the temper—placid, imperturbable and "sluggish." These incapable of the passion of anger must be incapable of any other great passion.—Exchange.

COMFORT IN COOL WEATHER

Coat in Material of Olive Green Cloth That Little Maid Will Appreciate.

Olive green cloth is used for this useful little coat, which is double-breasted and has the right front cut in a point, where fastening comes; a wide braid edging the fronts, also the turn-down collar; wider still forms the pocket flaps and cuffs.

Hat of beaver with a silk crown and rosette of ribbon at the side. Materials required: 2 yards.

Household Hints.

Milk besides being a food is a most useful liquid in the household. It will take out ink spots of long standing.

A little put into cooked starch gives it a gloss.

It will remove discoloration from gilt mirrors and picture frames.

Used with bluing for lace curtains it will make them look as fresh as new. When washing fine laces instead of using starch to stiffen them, a little milk will answer the purpose and make them creamy in color if so desired.

If a window is desired cloudy, apply a strong solution of opium salts mixed with vinegar. This gives a beautiful frosted appearance and will be permanent if varnished with a white varnish.

Use a little vasoline to rub over the shoes to keep them soft and waterproof.

When there are several pieces of cheese too dry to serve, try toasting them. It changes the flavor and makes a dainty way to serve cheese.

A little grated cheese added to encased potatoes adds flavor and changes an otherwise common dish into a new one.

The Uses of Cheese.

Cheese is such a concentrated food that a little of it is valuable in the bill of fare. There should never be a crumb of cheese wasted as there are so many dishes that are improved by a tablespoonful of grated cheese. Served as it commonly is in cubes or slices as an accompaniment to the dessert or as dessert itself with crackers it needs no recommendation. Cheese alone or in combination makes a fine filling for sandwiches. Take equal parts of the grated cheese and walnuts pounded to a meal, moisten with thick cream and season to taste with salt. Spread between thin slices of buttered bread. A little grated cheese added to a white sauce which may be served with eggs or toast is a nice breakfast or luncheon dish.

A plain omelet served with grated cheese sprinkled over it just before folding, changes the omelet into a fancy dish.

WOMEN MAY AVOID OPERATIONS

By taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The following letter from Mrs. Orville Rock will prove how unnecessary it is for women to submit to the dangers of a surgical operation when it may be avoided by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was four weeks in the hospital and came home suffering worse than before.

Here is her own statement.

Paw Paw, Mich.—"Two years ago I suffered very severely with a displacement. I could not bend my feet for a long time. My physician told me for seven months without much relief and at last sent me to Ann Arbor for an operation. I was there four weeks and came home suffering worse than before. My mother advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I did. Today I am well and strong and do all my own housework. I owe my health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and advise my friends who are afflicted with any female complaint to try it."—Mrs. Orville Rock, R. R. No. 5, Paw Paw, Mich.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for women's ills, and has positively restored the health of thousands of women. Why don't you try it?

Some Women We Ought to Know

Kitty Wilkinson and All Humble Workers for God.

IT is strange from what ordinary actions sometimes grow world-wide movements for good. A woman somewhere does some helpful little thing, perhaps for a neighbor; something her own womanly experience and womanly heart tells her is needed. And from this single apparently commonplace deed grows, in the course of time, results she never dreamed of.

The window in the Cathedral at Liverpool to "Kitty Wilkinson, And All Humble Workers for God" commemorates such an act and its results. Far back in the last century, when the cholera was raging in Liverpool, Kitty Wilkinson took into her home, and washed the clothes and bedding of the poor who were victims of the disease.

Catherine Seaward was born in 1786. After her marriage to Thomas Wilkinson, she became known as Kitty Wilkinson and also Catherine of Liverpool. She was poor and her home a humble one, but that did not prevent her from filling her life with good deeds. Her home, simple as it was, was the center of much work for the poor. She was poor herself and knew the needs of the poor. When the cholera broke out, she was foremost among those who nursed and ministered to the sufferers. And it was then that she brought to her own home, and washed, the clothes and bedding from the homes where the plague reigned. It brought to her attention the need of some place where such work could be done, and led eventually to the foundation of Public Baths and Wash-houses. From this beginning has grown the Public Baths to be found now in almost all municipalities.

In Liverpool, the first buildings were opened in 1846, and she and her husband were the first superintendents. A silver ten-service was presented in recognition of her work and bore the inscription, "The Queen," the Queen-Dowager, and the ladies of Liverpool to Catherine Wilkinson. And her epitaph voices the sentiment of her city, in saying, "Indefatigable and her self-sacrificing, she was the widow's friend; the support of the orphan; the fearless and unwearied nurse of the sick; the originator of baths and wash-houses for the poor."

Her life proves, as has many another, that one does not need to have money and influence to do some great good for the world. The thing is to see the need and to do what one can to supply it. The work will then grow of itself. Every age brings its need. So that there is just as much work to be done today to make this old world better as there was in Kitty Wilkinson's time. It may be right at our door, even though our shade be as unpretentious as Kitty Wilkinson's. It behooves us therefore to lend a hand wherever we see the hand is needed, for our simple action may grow into some great world good.

BRITZ OF HEADQUARTERS

By MARCIN BARBER
ILLUSTRATIONS BY RY. WATSON

The only thread that connected Miss Holcomb with the theft was the diamond found in her room. But to Britz's experienced mind, this circumstance pointed rather toward innocence than guilt. For, he argued, if she had taken those jewels, she would not have been so careless as to leave one of them in her boudoir. That diamond, Britz was convinced, was placed there intentionally and with sinister purpose by a hand other than Miss Holcomb's.

Britz rose from his seat, donned his topcoat and hat, and made his way to the tier of cells one of which held Miss Holcomb. He encountered Donnelly and Carson on the way.

"What time are you going to arraign her?" he asked.

"Right now," Donnelly replied. "We got the magistrate to hold court an hour longer for us."

A turnkey swung open the iron door of the cell. The detectives found Miss Holcomb huddled in a corner, the wan light of the corridor falling on her tear-bathed face.

"Don't take me back! They want to harm me! I haven't done anything!" she cried, when she saw the visitors. Britz stepped forward with an air of command and waved the other detectives back. He scraped his shoulders through the cell door and sat on the rude cot, facing the woman.

"Miss Holcomb," he said pleasantly, "there will be no further investigation in the Chief's office, no more third-degree methods will be applied to you. It is necessary under the law to bring you before a magistrate within twenty-four hours after your arrest. Now, brace yourself, please, for the ordeal. If you are innocent, you have absolutely nothing to fear. You will have an opportunity in court of consulting with your friends and engaging a lawyer. Your interests will be protected."

Instinctively, although in the gloom of her surroundings she could make out only a dim outline of his face, she felt a confidence in the detective that drew her like a tonic.

"I have a carriage waiting for you, Miss Holcomb," Britz informed her. "It will enable you to avoid the many curious eyes in the street."

She murmured her thanks as she stepped out of the cell and followed Britz and his companions through a maze of corridors to the street. They were driven rapidly to the Jefferson Market Court and ushered into the private room of the magistrate. A crowd of reporters was already on hand for the hearing. The curious eyes aimed pitilessly at her inspired in her a terror that made her shrink behind the broad shoulders of Donnelly. The magistrate motioned her to a seat close to his desk, and said:

"Madam, it is your privilege to engage counsel. I would advise you to do so at once, for anything you say may be used against you."

"I have done nothing wrong," she murmured.

"You had better get a lawyer," the magistrate urged.

As if in response to his advice, the door opened abruptly and two men entered. One was sharp-faced, gray-haired, nervous, with the unmistakable air of the lawyer. The other was a young man, his face marked with heavy lines of worry, as if he also working independently, regardless of anything Donnelly and Carson, the two men who made the arrest, may do. They blundered grievously when they arrested the young woman. We must overcome that blunder, but the time is not ripe for her release. If she leaves the Tombs, it must be with her name cleared of suspicion."

Dr. Fitch returned to the prison and was permitted to see the prisoner in the little reception room on the ground floor of the women's wing. Her lawyer had left instructions that the physician be allowed to consult with his fiancée at any time. On his first visit, he had found her distraught, hardly able to tell a coherent story. His call had a cheering effect on her, however, and she entered the reception room with a firmer step.

"I hope you have brought good news," she called.

"I have just talked with Lieutenant Britz, who is in charge of your case," he replied. "He has assured me he will do everything to prove your innocence and find the real criminal, but he wants you to remain here until you can leave with your name entirely cleared."

"You believe me, don't you?" she murmured.

"All those who know you must believe in you," he answered. "The very innocence of your nature is sufficient reply to the accusation against you."

As he hastened down the steps of the prison, he again met Britz. The two men walked to Broadway and up that thoroughfare to Twenty-third Street. When they parted, Britz knew the life history of Miss Holcomb.

She had been born in good circumstances, and was a graduate of Smith College. All her life, she had been reared to the belief that her future was well provided for. As the only child of a Boston banker, she lived in an environment of tranquillity that seemed her permanent heritage in life. Her father and mother died within a year of each other, during the stress of a financial panic. When the estate came to be settled, it was found insufficient to meet the outstanding obligations of the father. Left penniless, amid the luxuries of her birth, she found employment as a governess, and two years before the discovery of the substituted paste jewels, she was engaged by Mrs. Missioner as secretary.

Fitch met Miss Holcomb in Boston, and their friendship was renewed in New York. Their engagement was announced only a month before her arrest. Britz, trying to square the circumstances surrounding her arrest with the conclusion of guilt, decided that if she took the jewels, it must have been in a sudden temptation born of the luxury of her past. But, on more mature reflection, he concluded that her birth, her breeding, all the training of her life placed her above any such temptation; and when he entered his home to study the case in the quiet of his library, he was possessed of the strong conviction that Miss Holcomb was guiltless of the charge entered against her on the records of the Court.

CHAPTER VIII.

Britz Takes Action.

Lieutenant Britz occupied a unique position in the Detective Bureau. His official grade was the same as that of Donnelly and Carson, but, by sheer force of his ability, he had lifted himself so far above them that when working on a case they accepted his orders like subordinates. Britz was one of the four or five men of the entire detective force who could not be classed as a "stool-pigeon man." That is, he did not depend on the use of stool-pigeons for his results. He needed no staff of thieves to inform him of the doings of other thieves. His detective ability was developed to a high degree, combining an acute analytic sense with remarkable industry. These talents were reinforced by a rare detective instinct, which often led him irresistibly to the goal of his pursuit.

He was a bundle of twitching nerves beneath a placid exterior. Nature had endowed him with an inscrutable countenance, an iron will, and a restlessness that seemed to flow from an inexhaustible inner fountain. He matched his resourcefulness against the tricks of the criminals he pursued and, having the keener mind, he invariably won.

Britz's enthusiasm never bubbled to the surface. He carried himself with an appearance of masterly ease, as if he held his impulses in complete subjection. There was nothing striking in his stature, yet he left an impression of hidden strength as of a steel framework behind a light coat of plaster. His eyes, deep set beneath the arched outline of his eyebrows, seemed to emit a mysterious, inexplicable current that circled around one and drew one closer within its constantly narrowing circumference. The shade of melancholy that gloomed his nature was not hidden by the mask of superb indifference that rested on his well-defined features, with their crowning breadth of lightly furrowed forehead. It revealed itself with the slightest twitch of his facial muscles as well as in the drooping line of his mouth. By some peculiarity of the blood, his complexion ran a yellow ivory, never varying its color under the stress of the strongest emotions. It required superhuman courage to meet the steady gaze of his eyes and lie to him. Though somewhat abrupt of manner and speech, there was something engaging about him, some subtle mangle of personality that brought one under the thrall of his mind. Almost without the utterance of a syllable, he could bend weak natures to his will. Only the strongest persons were able to resist his domination.

He was one of those strange beings who live mostly within themselves, yet there were times when he felt a desolation of heart, a longing for companionship, for intimate association with his fellow beings. On such occasions, his life seemed to lack something of the beauty of other lives, as if it had been cast in a more somber shade. He could feel a wave of melancholy coming on him, and to avoid its depressing influence, he turned his mind resolutely to his work, feasting on the crime at hand as on some tempting dish. Without knowing why, the Missioner diamond robbery held for him a fascination more powerful than that called up by any other crime within his memory. He recognized surface indications of a deep cunning in the conception and execution of the theft. His experienced eye saw that no ignorant or vulgar mind had engineered the substitution of those marvelous diamonds. The pursuit of the criminal fairly sparkled with exciting possibilities, and Britz felt the thrill of the chase even before he started the pursuit.

Britz paced nervously up and down his room, revolving the incidents surrounding the discovery of the theft in his mind, but he was unable to pick a clew on which to work. Nor did the occurrences in which Donnelly and Carson participated furnish any promising material.

OLD ENGINE DRIVER DEAD

Leon O. Barcliff Ran the Locomotive That Killed Nine Newark Children in 1903.

Leon O. Barcliff, sixty-three years old, engineer of the Lackawanna express train that collided with a Clifton avenue trolley car on February 19, 1903, killing nine high school pupils, died recently in St. Michael's hospital, Newark.

Barcliff suffered severe injuries at the time of the Clifton avenue disaster, and never fully recovered from the shock. He worried much over the loss of the lives of the school children. He was taken to the hospital on February 16, the same institution where he was carried badly injured at the time of the fatal accident. He was suffering from a hardening of the arteries and an anemic lung, and was in a very weak condition.

On February 19, the eighth anniversary of the disaster, Barcliff recalled the wreck to mind and remarked to his wife, who was at his side:

"It's terrible to think that I am back here in the same hospital where I was just eight years ago to-day."

When Barcliff was employed by the Lackawanna railroad as an engineer

An Article of Merit.

We know that there are scores of hair tonics on the market that possess little if any intrinsic merit. This fact led the directors of the American Drug and Press Association to search far and wide and experiment thoroughly before finally adopting Meritol Hair Tonic for its association stores throughout the country. The result is a preparation guaranteed without an equal for the hair. It is a germ destroyer, antiseptic, and purifying in its action. It opens the pores of the scalp, keeps it pure and healthy, kills the germs and microbes, and assists nature to restore natural color of the hair by enabling it to draw its own coloring matter from the pigment glands of the scalp. A trial will convince you that there is no preparation for the hair that compares with Meritol Hair Tonic. Sold in Jansville only by the Reliable Drug Co., association representatives.

The Ruler of the World.

When we get behind all the circumstances of our daily life we find the thinker, the man with ideas. He is the true ruler of the world. He gives us all things, from the clothes of our bodies to the clothes of our minds. He gives us coats and commandments; nation, chop and commands; our politics, our religion, all in short, that we have.—London Daily Dispatch.

Native Education at the Cape.

Generally speaking, the natives are keen about education, though, like many Europeans, they do not much like paying for it. In England the desire for knowledge is so widespread that the percentage of children attending school compares very favorably with that of the most civilized European countries.—Kilmerley Diamond Fields Advertiser.

The Key to True Success.

The question of true success is of world-wide interest, yet it remains unanswered. Socialism can give no reply, because it cripples and destroys individual effort—and individuals make the world. Government can do little, for it accomplishes far less than individuals. Education, which strengthens each unit and binds all together, can alone bring us in sight of our goal, and education may be immeasurably widened in extent and raised in value by our able men, who have won their spurs, and who are ready now to work for the common weal. Is not this the key to true success?—Henry L. Higginson, in the Atlantic.

Trainmen of America Vindicated.

"Fourteen cents gold and without the tint of prison labor," is the verdict in the case of the much discussed medal presented to President Taft last April by the trainmen of America. Since the presentation of the medal, it had been charged that the medal was brass and that the engraving had been done by a prisoner at the Worcester county jail. President Taft allowed the investigators to use the medal in their work. The medal will now be returned to the president.

Two Speed Records.

Engine 329 of the Empire State express ran between Rochester and Buffalo, one mile in 32 seconds, on May 11, 1893, equivalent to 112.5 miles an hour. In March, 1901, a train of the Plant system, on a run from Fleming to Jacksonville, five miles, made it in two minutes and 30 seconds, equal to 120 miles an hour.

Pure in the Can

Pure in the Baking

Do you know that Baking Powder undergoes a chemical reaction in the process of baking which entirely changes the nature of the original substance? It's a fact.

One of the greatest authorities on Chemistry in the country found that a loaf of bread made from a quart of flour, leavened with Cream of Tartar Baking Powder, contained 45 grains more Rochelle Salts than is contained in one Seditz Powder.

Remember, this drug was not in the can. It was formed by the chemical reaction that took place in baking.

That is why so many baking powders which produce impurities in the baking can be advertised as "absolutely pure." It may be pure in the can, but it is not necessarily pure in the food.

CALUMET is absolutely free from every impurity. Food leavened with it contains no Tartaric Acid, Rochelle Salts, Alum, Lime or Ammonia. It is chemically correct.

CALUMET is the only high-grade baking powder sold at a moderate price. Do not confuse it with the cheap and big can kinds, or the high-priced Trust brands. It stands alone.
